Multijurisdictional enforcement action

Instructed in place of existing counsel thanks to our enforcement experience _____

We have been instructed by Kazakhstan Kagazy Group to bring a multijurisdictional enforcement action to satisfy its US$300+ million judgment debt. Reflecting the preeminent position of our team in the area of civil fraud and asset recovery, we took over the matter from another preeminent global law firm to enforce our client's unsatisfied judgment.

The judgment was awarded in February 2018, following a long-running, major fraud claim brought by the Kazakhstan Kagazy Group against Maksat Arip, its former manager and shareholder, and others. The judgment is yet to be satisfied and Mr. Arip has fled the United Kingdom in breach of the court's orders to avoid a prison sentence for contempt of court.

Our client claims that Mr. Arip and his wife distributed proceeds of the fraud to members of their family and into family trusts in a sophisticated effort to evade detection and enforcement. Following a significant judgment against Mr. Arip's wife and his mother-in-law, we obtained a worldwide freezing injunction to prevent the further dissipation of assets.

Extensive work is underway to secure final charging orders against a series of high-value properties in London, and we are coordinating efforts to enforce against assets, including cash, properties, luxury wristwatches, cars, and art, in Switzerland, Cyprus, and Italy.

Litigation against Sergei Pugachev

Forcing disclosure and enforcing judgments _____

Before Mezhprombank collapsed in 2010, Sergei Pugachev, the bank's ultimate beneficial owner, took out around US$1 billion and fled Russia for London. We are helping the bank's liquidator, the Deposit Insurance Agency, track down and freeze Mr. Pugachev's assets and enforce a judgment against him around the world.

This case has seen us litigate in England, France, and the Cayman Islands, among other jurisdictions. In Russia, the court gave judgment for RUB75.6 billion on the underlying claim. In England, the court ordered two worldwide freezing injunctions, a search order over London properties and a yacht, and injunctions banning Mr. Pugachev from leaving the country. It also sentenced him to two years in prison for 12 counts of contempt of court.

The English court required Mr. Pugachev to disclose assets held in purported discretionary trusts. It then determined that those trusts were shams and the assets were beneficially owned by him. We are now helping our clients enforce the judgment against those assets and fend off third parties who claim to have an interest in them.

Representing BTA Bank

Enforcing judgements totaling US$6 billion, all over the world _____

We are advising on the largest piece of fraud-related litigation to have been before the English court in recent years. BTA Bank alleged and has proved that its former Chairman, Mr. Ablyazov, assisted by other defendants, effectively stole over US$6 billion from the bank. We have issued 13 claims in England alone against Mr. Ablyazov and others.

To date, well over 150 hearings have taken place in England (including numerous hearings before the Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court), as well as many hearings in numerous other jurisdictions including the BVI, Cyprus, Russia, and Kazakhstan. We obtained judgments for over US$4 billion in 2013 and have since been able to enforce those judgments against assets around the globe, including real estate in London, multiple construction projects in and around Moscow, shares in banks across the CIS, and offshore chains of companies in the British Virgin Islands, Cyprus, and Seychelles. Despite Mr. Ablyazov's assets being held through a myriad of complex offshore accounts and trust structures, we achieved notable successes in investigating, identifying, and enforcing against those assets in the face of numerous breaches of court orders by Ablyazov and those associated with him in an attempt to hide assets and frustrate the enforcement process.

Much recent work has focused on a claim brought by BTA against Mr. Ablyazov's son-in-law, Ilyas Khrapunov, for the tort of unlawful means conspiracy. A challenge by Mr. Khrapunov to the court's jurisdiction was heard by the Supreme Court in January 2019, which found in BTA's favor that the English court has jurisdiction to hear BTA's claims. Following another favorable appeal decision (as regards Mr. Khrapunov's obligation to attend court in England to be cross-examined on his assets), BTA obtained judgment against him for a little over US$500 million in June 2019.

Major investment bank _____

We secured a successful outcome for a Europe-based multinational investment bank in connection with long-running enforcement proceedings relating to a private aircraft.

To date, we have obtained judgment in the French courts to lift attachment orders over the aircraft, resisted an appeal, negotiated variations to a criminal freezing order in Hong Kong, defended and obtained the discontinuance of proceedings in New York, defended proceedings in the BVI, defended and obtained the discontinuance of an LCIA arbitration claim, and participated in an insolvency process in the BVI and Hong Kong.

The result was a successful sale of the aircraft and recovery of significant sums for our client.

PrivatBank _____

This high-profile claim was brought by JSC CB PrivatBank, the largest bank in Ukraine and now in state ownership, against its former shareholders, Igor Kolomoisky and Gennadiy Bogolyubov, and six companies alleged to be (secretly) owned by them. PrivatBank alleges that the two men used the six companies in a scheme to defraud the bank of around US$1.9 billion while it was still under their ownership and control.

PrivatBank's judgment was issued in December 2017, and we obtained a US$2.6 billion freezing order against all the defendants at that time. The freezing order was upheld by the Court of Appeal in a landmark judgment, which is likely to be one of the seminal decisions on jurisdictional issues for some years to come.

Rosneft _____

We coordinated multijurisdictional asset-tracing on behalf of a major Russian oil corporation in connection with enforcement of an arbitral award worth over US$90 million (the proceedings were held in Gibraltar, Cayman Islands, Monaco, Liechtenstein, and Greece).

HRH Prince Al-Waleed Bin Talal _____

We represent HRH Prince Al-Waleed and an investor group in English High Court proceedings to recover secret commissions paid to an agent in the course of the purchase of a luxury Monte Carlo hotel. The case has led to one of the leading English law case authorities on the recoverability of bribes.

Rosideo

Following several bankruptcy court urgent instances, involving complex procedural issues and two insolvency receiverships, in less than two weeks we successfully recovered significant assets (equipment and machinery) owned by the client and held in the premises of the bankrupt company, after having been assigned to it by another bankrupt company. Swift recovery of the assets was vital for the client to meet its business obligations.

Oil and gas company

We represented a leading oil and gas production company in ICC arbitration proceedings against a North African petroleum company in relation to the supply of liquefied natural gas. A several hundred million dollar arbitral award was awarded in April 2013 in favor of our client. A Hogan Lovells team from Paris and London worked to resist a challenge to the award brought before the English courts and also in resisting appeals against enforcement orders. Judgment was rendered in favor of our client on all counts and payment to our client was made in full.

Icelandic bank

We advised on a secondary insolvency proceeding filed in Spain and advised on the recovery procedures with regards to its LBO investment loan portfolio.

FM Capital Partners

We advised FMCP, a global alternative asset manager that manages Libyan sovereign wealth assets worth almost US$1 billion, on a five year-long legal battle against its former CEO and former banker. Judgment was obtained in 2018, and, since then, we have pursued a range of asset recovery steps around the world including the UAE, the Cayman Islands, and Monaco. We have assisted FMCP in the recovery of millions of dollars that were fraudulently siphoned into offshore bank accounts.

Merchant International

We successfully represented Merchant International in the English Commercial Court proceedings against Naftogaz Ukraine. The matter involved a ground-breaking decision of the English Court of Appeal in relation to the enforceability of foreign judgments. After obtaining a freeze order, we assisted our client in recovering its outstanding debt in excess of US$35 million through various enforcement procedures, including third-party debt orders, an order for the sale of shares, and a receivership order over funds held by a London-based bond issuer on behalf of the judgment debtor.

Russian energy company

Our client, a leading Russian energy company, received tort liability and insolvency decisions against the owner of a brokerage services company in Russia for over US$65 million stemming from a fraud scheme. We are working on behalf of our client to recognize and enforce these claims in Spain.

Okritie Bank

We advised Okritie Bank on successful Commercial Court proceedings relating to a US$180 million fraud claim against former employees and related parties. The matter involved substantial interlocutory hearings, asset freezing and tracing claims in multiple jurisdictions, and criminal claims, preceding a substantial trial.

UK bank

We are representing one of the largest banks in the United Kingdom in an enforcement proceedings in Spain of a US$11+ million award from the Supreme Court of Gibraltar related to three defaulted loans to an individual debtor that were guaranteed by a mortgage over a Spanish villa.

“The advice is fast, sharp and to the point, and 24/7 availability is the norm to expect from the firm.”

Cross-border judgment recognition

Working across the United States to recover assets

We represented a British multinational banking and financial services company in the enforcement of a judgment against a Saudi debtor in three United States jurisdictions. The decisions issued from this litigation are among the few issued by any United States court on whether one state's courts are obligated to recognize and enforce a judgment of another state recognizing a foreign country judgment.

After a contested summary judgment motion, we obtained judgment in New York recognizing a Bahraini judgment under New York's version of the Uniform Foreign Country Money Judgments Recognition Act. During the proceeding, the debtor argued the Bahraini tribunal failed to provide due process in the original arbitration proceeding because the tribunal employed non-professional judges and resembled "compulsory arbitration" opposed to in-court litigation. The debtor also argued that the tribunal unduly restricted evidence. The trial court ruled in our client's favor and the decision was affirmed by the Appellate Division.

The New York judgment was then registered in both Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia and in each of those jurisdictions the debtor challenged whether a New York judgment that "merely" recognized a foreign judgment was entitled to Full Faith and Credit under the United States Constitution. This issue was argued in both the D.C. Superior Court and the Pennsylvania Court of Common Pleas, and both courts ruled in our client's favor.

Multinational infrastructure, engineering, and construction company

A team from our Miami office represented a multinational infrastructure engineering and construction company in the United States in an international arbitration dispute matter and in the subsequent cross-border enforcement case connected to the acquisition of a group of Canadian construction companies specializing in the oil and gas exploration and production industry.

Following a nearly month-long arbitration hearing in Calgary, Alberta, the arbitration tribunal issued an award of over US$70 million in our client's favor. In the award, the tribunal found that our client was entitled to indemnification from the three sellers as a result of their breaches of various representations and warranties in the purchase agreement.

Following the award, two of the three sellers paid their portion of the award; however, the third seller fled to the Cayman Islands to avoid enforcement. Our team successfully had the arbitration award domesticated in Canada, the Cayman Islands, the United States, Singapore, Cook Islands, and Switzerland. We further coordinated with lawyers from our Hogan Lovells insolvency team on a strategy to collect the funds from both the seller's company and the seller individually

Nornickel

We secured a favorable outcome for the Russian nickel and palladium mining and smelting company in the enforcement of an arbitration award for US$100 million.

A New York-led Hogan Lovells team was able to domesticate the award in New York and pierce the corporate veil to hold the individual equity owners liable. The award was then enforced against their personal assets around the world, including a Manx Trust managed out of Israel.

The team succeeded in United States District Court to have orders of execution and levy issued against their personal assets, and US$2 million of art and jewelry was seized and sold at auction. The team went on to sue the company's Israeli and United States counsel to set aside and recover fraudulent conveyances that were later settled.

Argentina creditors

For over 12 years, we represented a series of creditors who held sovereign debt of the Republic of Argentina. The government defaulted on the debt and we obtained judgments in New York. Once the judgments were obtained, we conducted discovery and informal activities aimed at identifying assets of the republic that were potentially subject to seizure and/or levy to satisfy our clients' judgment, which involved extensive analysis under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act.

New York-based company

We represent a New York-based provider of industrial and MRO products in the recovery of over US$37 million from two former senior executives. Through our work with investigative firms, we have collected approximately US$10 million and sought liens and bonds in state court, including a recent argument for the imposition of a US$30 million bond in Florida.
